COMMERCIAL SHEEP SALES SCHEDULED FOR EDMONTON

Ten commercial sheep sales will be held at the Edmonton public stockyards this summer and fall. The first is scheduled for July 26 with the others following at two week intervals.

Five of these sales, known as the north-central sheep sales, were held for the first time last year with most encouraging results. Prices for the 3,200 finished lambs and the 2,800 feeder lambs were generally above market quotations, and at some sales they were considerably higher. Although prices received for young breeding ewes were lower than they should have been, this situation will undoubtedly be rectified as the reputation of the sales for high quality breeding stock becomes established.

The north-central sheep sales were started to enable sheep producers to offer market and breeding stock of high quality in sufficient numbers to attract buyers. The high prices achieved by the annual fall sales in southern Alberta have been mainly due to the large, uniform lots of good quality animals that are offered for sale in a competitive enviornment. Market lambs sold in the north-central sales are sorted into uniform lots and all the ewes are classified according to age and breed. Any animal that does not measure up to standard is sold for slaughter.

Sheep producers at last year's sales received excellent cooperation from the Western Stockyard Company Limited and from the various commission firms which sold the animals. These firms increased competition by buying.

This year's commercial sheep sales will be held on a Friday except for two in October which will be held on a Saturday. Finished lambs will be accepted at all sales, and feeder lambs on the September 20 sale and all subsequent sales. Breeding ewes will be accepted for the October sales only, and registered rams will be sold at the August 23 and October 5 sales only. A new feature this year is the stipulation that all rams must have a provincial government record of performance rating to show that they were in the top one-third of their respective flocks.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Campers Enjoy Sunny Alberta . . .

Judging from the number of campers, trailers and car top loads on the highways half of the population of the continent appears to be coming and going on vacation.

Camping is attracting thousands more each year and is a means of enjoying a wonderful outdoors holiday. Alberta is a camper's paradise and our summer visitors will go home with memories of golden sunsets, the briskness of a mountain morning or the serene quiet of fishing a sheltered bay.

Although you may find a little crowding along some of the main tourist arteries, Alberta generally is blessed with many locations where you can find privacy and quiet. This is a far cry from what residents of some of the major North American cities consider camping - practically piled on top of one another.

Camping safely includes showing children how to identify harmful plants, berries and mushrooms and drinking water should be suspect except as indicated in parks. Make sure your campfire is out and always adjust slowly to the sun to avoid over-exposure.

Have a good trip.

Dashed Hopes Department . . .

We could almost feel the balmy, soft breezes of mid-January only to have our hopes dashed by the observations of a Canadian scientist.

Russian scientists got us started on the dream of basking in the mid-winter sun with their proposal for a 50-mile dam across the Bering Strait to allow pumping of cold Artic water into the Pacific, permitting warmer Atlantic water to flow across the Arctic basin. The result expected was the rising by 30 or 35 degrees in the polar latitudes and much warmer Canadian winters.

"It won't work," say Canadian scientists, so if you share the dislike for cold and snow, don't count on the dam. You'll have to soak up the summer sun or find some way of wintering in Arizona.

THE LAND USE ADJUSTMENT AND FARM ENLARGEMENT PROGRAM

The Agricultural Rehabilitation and Development Act of 1961 gave national recognition to the need of major adjustments in many rural areas, where the resource base of farm land was inadequate to support the existing population. The need for an adequate land base for each farm unit, both as to quantity and quality, was recognized. None of the adjustments to land, however, could be accomplished without adjustments being made in the lives of many people, both on and off farms in rural areas.

Land use adjustment and farm enlargement programs can only be carried out when the people directly affected realize that it is in their best interests to make these adjustments. The rate of progress of these programs for land will be in direct relation to the effort that is put into showing these people the nature of their dilemna, and the opportunities that are available for them to make changes that will provide adequate incomes.

LAND USE ADJUSTMENT

The programs of land use adjustment are designed to change land from present use to a use determined to be more effective in terms of national income and the incomes of related people, on the basis of present day knowledge and economics. This must be recognized as a very dynamic situation. Changing technology and changing demands are constantly affecting the determination of the best use of land.

THE PROCESS OF FARM ENLARGEMENT

Farm enlargement is the term used to designate the procedure by which ARDA proposes to assist in raising the income of the operator of the basic unit in which land is used for agriculture. There are many ways this may be accomplished:

1. Increasing the Amount of Land per Farm: Expanding the area of land per farm is the popular concept of farm enlargement. Certainly in many parts of Canada, large numbers of farm operators have insufficient arable land for the type of production afforded by the soil and climate. All the efficiencies of modern mechanics and management must be applied to bring economic return to the user. Methods with a high labor requirement are no longer adequate to use this land in agriculture. However, techniques are available by which the efficiency of the man hour can be raised to a satisfactory level of return. The adjustment of the resource base of land is essential for their application.

2. Improving of Land in Existing Farms: Land in farms may be permanently improved in many ways: draining, irrigating, clearing bush cover, and stone removal are the most evident. Such improvements will increase the volume of production and the efficiency in the use of capital and labor, thereby effectively enlarging the farm operation and returns.

3. Adoption of Best Production Practices: The application of production practices designed to maximize economic crop production will also enlarge the farm output volume and returns. Liming of acid soils, new varieties of crops, fertilizer applications are a few examples.

For the purposes of the ARDA programs, all the known methods of enlarging the farm business and increasing the efficiency in the use of land, labor and capital must be combined, if they are to be effective. The final criteria is that the resulting farm unit must be self-sustaining and viable in the economic sense. Programs that accomplish less are merely perpetuating low income farms.

FARM ENLARGEMENT PROGRAMS

Farm enlargement programs have been approved, jointly with four provinces to share costs of $11,150,000 over the 5-year term of the present Rural Development Agreement. Additional programs are being planned and are nearing approval which will greatly enhance this activity of ARDA.

The Homemaker

Marlene Jubenvill

Dist. Home Economist

10426-81 Ave.
Edmonton

If anything is predictable in an average homemaker's day, it's making sure that there are three main meals on the table. It's like getting the mail through wind, sleet, rain, etc; a woman must get food on the table - through snags, snarls and sickness no matter what.

And yet the homemaker does have a large choice of food on her side to help her provide well balanced and attractive meals. At least, she doesn't have to be content to ladle each member a bowl of rice morning, noon and night.

But in spite of living in the agricultural "horn of plenty" so to speak, we are most certainly not free from malnutrition.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture states that every second person we meet has a dietary deficiency.

It's hardly believable, is it? For too long the word malnutrition has been used to conjure up the starving face of an Asian child longing for rice. That's starvation, not only malnutrition.

Malnutrition occurs when we do not eat ALL the essential components that keep our bodies healthy. The U.S. study shows that family diets were most often lacking in citrus fruits, green and yellow vegetables and milk.

This business of food and health is no idle chatter. A New York study correlates poor nutrition in small children with inpaired intellectual ability. Evidently brain cells continue to develop during the first three years of life.

A Medical Officer of Health in Alberta states that between the ages of 6 to 9 one child in every four is undernourished.

The language of nutrition is too complicated for many people to understand. There are the vitamins and minerals, the carbohydrates and proteins, not to forget fats. It is rather confusing trying to figure out what each does for the body and what foods contain each.

The Canadian Medical Association and the Canadian Life Insurance Association have jointly put out a lovely coloured illustrated book on "What to Eat to be Healthy".

It really explains the different nutrients and illustrates in "living colour" the foods rich in these. For example, Vitamin C is contained not only in orange juice, etc., but also in cabbage, canteloupe, strawberries and raspberries - all of which are now in season of just about in.

The book again is FREE upon request. For better or worse the whole business of food and health is the responsibility of the homemaker. She makes the food decisions in 9 out of 10 homes. I think we need as much outside help as possible to fulfill our responsibility to keep our family nutritionally sound.

WHITE WATER CANOE RACE TO BE HELD THIS WEEKEND

A record number of paddlers are expected to compete in this year's Alberta White Water Professional Canoe Race. For three enduring days, July 19th, 20th, and 21st, the top canoeists from Canada and the Eastern United States will be competing on the treacherous North Saskatchewan River for the Labatt's Challenge Trophy and prize money in excess of $3,000.00, provided by Labatt's Alberta Brewery Ltd. Prizes range from $1,250.00 to $100.00 for the first and seventh position respectively. An additional $50.00 is offered to any team finishing the 176-mile rugged course within three hours of the winning team.

According to Bob Hardy, President of the Alberta Paddlers' Association, canoeists will be entering the North Saskatchewan River at Rocky Mountain House on the morning of July 19th, for the three-day river race to Edmonton, with overnight stops in Drayton Valley and Devon. The faster canoes are expected to cross the finish line at Groat Road Bridge on Sunday, July 21st, at approximately 2:30 in the afternoon.

The canoes are expected to arrive in Drayton Valley between 4:30 and 6:30 p.m. on Friday, July 19th. A banquet in honor of the canoeists will be held in the Elks Hall starting at 7:00 p.m.

With such fierce competitors as Gib McEachern and Norm Crerar from Manitoba, and Verlen Kruger from the United States expected to enter, E.R. Baxter, Marketing Manager of Labatt's Alberta Brewery Ltd., feels confident that this year's White Water Race will develop into a real test of endurance and a show the public will not want to miss.

As an added attraction, a 16-mile Novelty Race from Devon to Whitemud Creek will be included in this year's final day of the event. This race will be open to any team owning a canoe or kayak. However, a $2.00 entry fee will be required for each team entering this race. Life belts or jackets are mandatory. All trophies and prizes for the Novelty Race will be presented by the Alberta Paddlers' Association.

Land Use Study Approved For Alberta Forested Areas

A renewal program "Forest Land Use Capability Classification" is to be continued to 1970 under ARDA.

Alberta Agriculture Minister H.E. Strom, and Federal Forestry & Rural Development Minister Maurice Sauve have announced approval of a land use study at a total cost of approximately $55,000, of which the Province will pay $27,500.

The appraisal is necessary to formulate plans for the orderly development and assignment of lands to their proper use, and will assist the Alberta Dept. of Lands & Forests in determining which lands should be used for agriculture and which for forestry. It will also establish guidelines for adjustment to the Province's "Green Zone" boundary which can have a direct effect on the ARDA land use program.

In the development of a land capability inventory and subsequent land use classification priority will be given to those areas (Rocky Mountain House and Whitecourt districts) where the demand for agricultural expansion has necessitated an immediate appraisal of land capability. The land problems in the above areas were assessed by interviewing the people directly involved.

Zoning, preceded by people involvement, and accompanied by intelligent community planning, is the primary way to help achieve: the orderly development of lands best suited to agriculture or forestry; and the protection of lands for forestry, recreation and other purposes which are submarginal for farming. The project will: finalize zoning in the Rocky Mountain House and Whitecourt districts; complete (during the current fiscal year) the zoning of the Medicine River - Rose Creek watersheds; and draw up preliminary plans for the Edson district and areas adjacent to the north and east of Lac la Biche.

Final zoning of areas in the Athabasca River and Pouce Coupe River drainage areas will make up the workload for 1968-69.

Aerial photos of all areas will be interpreted and maps prepared to a scale of 1"=2 miles with land capability and land use overlays.

The project is to be carried out by the Forest Survey & Planning Branch of the Alberta Forest Services, assisted by the Lands Branch of the Alberta Dept. of Lands and Forests.

A jet whisked this seed from Miami, Florida, to Ottawa where, a few hours later, Dr. L.S. Donovan planted it in CDA's Central Experimental Farm.

Corn Experiments Should Prove Help To Silage Users

OTTAWA-It doesn't seem fair that the plants are treated better than the scientists at the Central Experimental Farm run by the Canada Department of Agriculture here.

After all, it does seem a bit unusual that corn is being sent by non-stop jet to Miami, Florida, for a working winter holiday while the scientists are left behind to brave 20 below zero temperatures in the nation's capital.

It's all part of a program that is cutting experimental time to a third for Dr. L. S. Donovan, a corn breeder, who doesn't really care that his corn is enjoying Florida sunshine while he's shovelling snow out of his driveway. He's pampering his corn because he thinks he has the secret to growing four or five stalks where previously only one grew. His corn has consistently outyielded the best silage corn in Canada during tests on research stations and experimental farms from coast to coast.

Now it's just a matter of time before he releases parent strains to seed companies who in turn will sell the first hybrid ensilage corn seed ever developed in Canada. That's why it's so important that the corn be grown in Florida - so important, in fact, that the day after the Florida crop was harvested this spring, it was whisked to the Miami International Airport for a non-stop flight to Ottawa. It was back in Canadian soil and growing within days of its arrival here.

The corn Dr. Donovan is developing isn't the kind that makes good whiskey, corn syrup, starch or breakfast cereal. It's for cattle. Between 40 and 50 percent of the corn grown in Canada each year is chopped up and dumped into towering silos to keep beef cattle growing steaks and dairy cows producing milk all winter.

Until now, hybrid corn research has concentrated on development of a new and better corn for seed, which is used for whiskey, corn syrup, corn starch or similar products. When Dr. Donovan decided to spend more time and effort developing an ensilage type of corn, he began looking for an entirely different type of plant, one that would have lots of bulk plus as much grain as possible. Seed corn researchers generally look for lots of grain, as little stalk as they can get away with and a plant that will ripen the grain before harvest time. Ensilage corn doesn't have to ripen completely because a half-ripe kernel is almost as good as a fully-ripened kernel in the silo.

Despite some difficult obstacles, Dr. Donovan has developed this new type of corn that grows four or five stalks, a corn that will have lots of bulk and grain for the beef and dairy farmers, but too long and uneven a ripening period for seed growers. Each stalk on the new plant may grow an ear of corn at a different time of the growing season, which means that some will be fully ripe and the rest may be only half ripe when frost kills the plant.

Feeders Asked to Complete Cattle Survey Questionnaire

The statistics branch of the Alberta Department of Agriculture is asking all cattlemen who receive a questionnaire to complete and return it before the deadline of July 30.

Information obtained from this survey, which will involve 18,586 or one-third of the province's cattle feeders, is intended to help producers, feedlot operators and others to take advantage of optimum market conditions. The statistical data will be published as soon as it has been compiled. The survey was requested by cattle feeders and livestock associations.

It is the second survey in which the random sample principle has been used and in which the operations have been classified according to size. The questionnaires contain questions on the number, sex and weight of animals being fed for slaughter. Earlier cattle-on-feed surveys involved all operators and were much more general in nature. The first survey which made use of the new technique was conducted in January of this year. The response was very good with over 36 per cent of the questionnaires being returned. It proved that the information obtained from this type of survey was adequate for making accurate estimates.

Cattle-on-feed estimates are designed to put feeders on a more equal footing with those who buy their cattle. They provide the feeder with data on the volume of cattle liekly to be marketed during a specific period, thereby enabling him to adjust his operations to changing conditions of supply. He should then be in a position to take advantage of higher prices when volume is low and to avoid selling when volume is high and prices low.

By increasing the amount of data available to the agricultural economy as a whole, cattle-on-feed estimates help reduce risk and help to stabilize prices. The brunt of marketing instability, which results from undersupply and higher prices followed by oversupply and low prices, falls on the primary producer. Although there are people who are willing to assume the risk associated with lack of information on market conditions, they will do so only for a price a large portion of which is paid by the farmer.

Remember, good estimates of cattle-on-feed can only be obtained with the full co-operation of the feeders who received the questionnaires. They should be completed and returned as soon as they are received. The cut-off date of July 30 has been set so that the estimates can be published as soon after the information has been collected as possible. Any questionnaires postmarked later than that date will not be used for tabulation.

Farewell Party Held

Mrs. Chris Aronsson, former agent and chief operator of the Seba Beach telephone office since 1956, was honored at a farewell open-house party on June 15. Friends from Seba Beach, Gainford, Fallis and Sundance districts as well as many other places "called in" from 2:30 until after 10:00 p.m.

A delicious lunch was served by many of Chris's friends. Mrs. Mary Cull, Mrs. Betty Mann and Mrs. Mark Kowolchuk poured tea.

At 4:00 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. J. Walker arrived from Edmonton and Mr. Walker representing the A.G.T. presented Chris with a cheque and a diploma. A purse of money, a token of appreciation from her many friends, was presented at this time too.

Chris's kind nature and many, many favors will long be remembered in the community.

Dairy Princess to be Named at Exhibition

Twelve young farm women will be seeking the 1968-69 Alberta Dairy Princess title.

The contest will be run off at the Edmonton Exhibition during Klondike Days. Eliminations will be staged at 4:30 P.M. on Saturday, July 20, and Monday and Tuesday, July 22-23. The new princess will be selected from four finalists at 3:00 P.M. Wednesday, July 24.

The winner, after a year's appearances at agricultural events in the province, will represent Alberta in 1969's National Finals at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto. The reigning Alberta Princess is Shirley Clark, 19, of Namao, who will be entering the National Finals.

The competition is open to young women from 17 to 25 years of age. They must be single, and may live off the farm if attending college or university, or working.

Entrants are scored on appearance, deportment, poise and self-expression, for a total of 60 points. A further 40 points are awarded for efficiency in milking.

Massey-Ferguson MF 39
PULL-TYPE WHEEL RAKE

Watch this amazing MF 39 Wheel Rake windrow a field of hay and you'll probably never want to handle hay any other way. Five or six ground driven fingerwheels skim over the field, windrowing at nearly twice the speed of parallel bar rakes. Spring steel tines "caterpillar" along close to the ground, deftly picking up each piece of hay while at the same time dodging around obstructions. Hay travels shorter distance from swath to windrow. Regardless of forward speed or uneven terrain hay is laid into a straight easy-to-bale windrow. The MF 39 is a real money maker—economical to buy, simple to maintain, and a superior saver of hay and hay quality.

Mounted models and side delivery rakes, too!

Dept. of Agriculture to Assist Fair Exhibitors

Agriculture Minister Harry Strom says the Alberta Deaprtment of Agriculture will again assist livestock breeders of the province with an exhibit at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair in November.

Selectors appointed by the provincial breed association. will select the exhibit under the direction of the Alberta Livestock Board. The Livestock Branch will co-ordinate the work of selectors and assemble the shipment.

Breeders planning to nominate beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep and horses should forward their nominations to J. L. Kerns, Livestock Supervisor, Alberta Department of Agriculture, 10405 - 100th Avenue, Edmonton.

Nominations must be mailed to reach the department prior to September 6th as some selections will commence on that date.

There may be a few changes in the classification of some classes of livestock for 1968. Because of this, breeders who have not exhibited for a year or two but who plan to nominate entries this year, should write to the Royal Winter Fair Assocation to assure they receive a 1968 livestock prize list as soon as it is available.

Recreation Round-Up

By Mike Gormley

SWIMMING POOL ATTENDANCE UP.

Attendance at the Drayton Valley Swimming Pool is up from the 1967 total at this time. As of July 1, this year a total of 12,784 persons had already passed through the portals of the pool. At the same period last year some three thousand less customers used the facility, 9,718 to be exact. The sale of family tickets has more than doubled last year's records and single admissions are just a bit higher than in 1967. Last year as of July 1, 373 adults had paid admission to the pool. This year at that date 265 persons in that category used the facility. As for children and students in 1967 a total of 3,815 persons swam up to the formentioned date. This year a total of 4,034 have used the pool to date.

There is little difference in the registration for swimming instruction. Last year at this date some 140 candidates had made application for some course in swimming. Presently we have 156 persons who have taken or who currently are taking some category of swimming instruction. It is a safe prognostigation that swimming instruction registrations will reach the five hundred mark this season. The school program run in late May and during the month of June was on a par with 1967.

The pool will close for the season on Sunday, September 8th at 10:00 p.m. There will be no school swimming instruction program run this fall chiefly because of scheduling difficulties encountered by the schools at that time.

INSTRUCTORS COURSE HELD

A Red Cross Instructors and Senior Leaders Course was held here in Drayton Valley during the past two weeks. The six day course was divided over two weekends, Friday, Saturday and Sunday of each week. The course was taught by Sharon Phelan, Chief Lifeguard at the local pool. From this course three local people qualified as Red Course Senior Leaders. The newly qualified Senior Leaders are Jack Palmer, Ken Goble and Donald Whelen. This brings the total to seven local persons who are presently Red Cross Senior Leaders qualified to give Red Cross Swimming Instruction. Four young people; Barbara Henderson, Bruce Hay, Neil Samis and Jill Kerr graduated from this course earlier this year in Edmonton.

SWIM MEET THIS WEEKEND

The annual swim meet will be held here this Saturday afternoon, July 20, starting at 1:00 p.m. The meet will feature teams from Drayton Valley, Devon and Edson. The local swim team has been in constant training for the past six weeks and should be in shape to give a good account of themselves in this meet.

The competitive swimmers will see plenty of action this weekend. After Saturday's meet in Drayton Valley, the scene shifts to Devon where all teams will compete on Sunday, July 21. The Edson meet will be held later in the summer.
